* From time to time courses under the heading of PADM 695 “Advanced Topics” will be offered that students may choose to take as electives. Students may take more than one PADM 695, as long as the course is different.

Recommended Core Course Sequence

Students are required to enroll in Administrative Theory I: The Context of Public Administration (PADM 651) and Administrative Theory II: The Process of Public Administration (PADM 652) as early as possible in their program of study. The remaining core courses are not required to be taken in a specific order however, the Capstone Seminar (PADM 746) must be taken after the other core courses have been completed (or in the same semester as the last of the core courses are being completed). Students should note that core courses are rarely offered during the summer term and should plan accordingly.

Concentration in Multi-Sector Public Service

The Multi-Sector Public Service concentration will consist of one (1) required concentration course PADM 725 (Government, Society, and Business) and three (3) electives.

Students will analyze, synthesize, think critically, solve problems, and make decisions from a multi-sectoral perspective. They will examine the impact of different social, economic, and political forces/phenomena on multi-sectoral management/policy issues. Students will understand how the changing public service landscape affects policy decision making, management, and governance.

The acceptable electives for the concentration are:

- PADM 695 Advanced Topics (Citizen Engagement course) 1-3

School of Public Service
In order to remain in good standing in the Ph.D. program, students must maintain a Grade Point Average (GPA) of at least 3.25. If a student falls below 3.25, they will be placed on probation for a period of one semester. If, at the end of the probationary semester, the student's GPA remains below 3.25, the student will be indefinitely suspended from the program. If a student earns a grade of F in any course work attempted while enrolled in the Ph.D. program, likewise, any student who earns a grade of F in any course work attempted while enrolled in the Ph.D. program will be indefinitely suspended from the program.

Comprehensive Exams

Comprehensive exams take place at the end of coursework and prior to the writing of the dissertation prospectus. The proposed structure and format are intended to better support PhD students' transition from coursework to dissertation by focusing on written and oral exams in the form of an empirical research paper proposal that is specific to an individual student's planned dissertation topic, as opposed to more general concepts. It will be a committee-lead exam with the student identifying an exam committee comprising of at least two School of Public Service faculty members. The student works with the committee during the exam process.

Therefore, the entire comprehensive exam process requires the application of concepts, literature, and methodology of the public administration and public policy field to the distinctive research interests of the student. Furthermore, the exercise of completing the proposed comprehensive exam process provides a more valid testing of the student's ability to use the knowledge gained from coursework.

The exam consists of two portions, written and oral. The exam committee will evaluate both portions of the comprehensive exam. Written Exam - Students will write an empirical research paper with the following content: (1) introduction, (2) literature review, (3) theory/conceptual framework, (4) research design, data collection/availability, proposed analysis, limitations, and (5) contributions. Oral Exam - Presentation and oral defense of written exam to the exam committee.

Students have a maximum of 3 semesters (excluding summer) to submit the written exam following completion of coursework. The clock begins at the conclusion of the term where the student registered for his/her 37th credit hour. Failure to meet this deadline will result in exam failure and dismissal from the PhD program. Students may submit as many drafts to the committee as deemed appropriate by the committee but can only submit 1 official written exam to the Test Administrator (by the end of the 3rd semester, excluding summer, following coursework completion). There is no re-take of the written exam. The Test Administrator will test for plagiarism. Any exam that fails the plagiarism test will result in exam failure and dismissal from the PhD program.

Students must complete the written and oral exams within 4 semesters (excluding summer) of completing coursework. This timeframe begins at the conclusion of the term where the student registered for his/her 37th credit hour. Failure to meet this deadline will result in exam failure and dismissal from the PhD program. A student who completes the oral exam and fails must retest prior to the end of the next semester.

Dissertation Committee

After the candidacy examination process has been completed, the collective responsibility of the faculty in guiding the student is transferred to the candidate's dissertation committee. Refinement and final approval of the topic and the dissertation prospectus is the first responsibility of the dissertation committee. This committee is formed to supervise the dissertation research and is announced in writing to the Graduate Program Director and the Dean with the Ph.D. Dissertation Committee. Any changes to an approved committee must be initiated on a Request for Change in Ph.D. Dissertation Committee.

The dissertation committee may not be formed until all course work is completed and the qualifying and candidacy examinations have been successfully completed. The dissertation committee shall have at least three members, at least two of whom must serve on the faculty of the School of Public Service. A third member of the dissertation committee must be drawn from eligible faculty outside of the student’s department (or in exceptional circumstances, outside the university), and must meet the requirements to be certified as eligible to serve on graduate committees. All dissertation committee members must be certified for graduate instruction. Membership may be extended to a non-university person with special knowledge of the dissertation subject area.

Adjunct professors who are certified for graduate instruction also may be appointed as voting members of the committee.

Dissertation

The format of the dissertation prospectus is up to the student and the dissertation committee. Consistent with University policy, students are ABD (All But Dissertation) once they have an approved topic. The candidate will select a topic for dissertation research under the guidance of his/her dissertation committee. The dissertation prospectus, a plan detailing the need for the study and methods and procedures to be employed in implementing it, should be prepared according to university guidelines and as discussed in the dissertation seminar class. In many cases, this may involve preparation of the first three chapters of the dissertation, but the specific style and content of the prospectus is left to the student’s dissertation committee.

The dissertation prospectus should show that the student has technical mastery of the subject area and is capable of doing independent, mature and scholarly work that will be in some respect a significant contribution to knowledge and practice and will modify or enlarge what has been previously known.

The candidate will present and defend the prospectus for the dissertation, demonstrating the originality of the research, its contribution to the literature of the discipline, requisite literature review, and the methodology that will be used in conducting the research. The committee will judge the merits of the proposal, making necessary suggestions and/or additions, and approve the proposal in writing, providing copies to the Graduate Program Director.

The candidate’s program of study culminates in a dissertation representing a major research project that focuses on an issue directly related to public administration and/or public policy and offers new or unique insight; thus the work must make a clear contribution to knowledge in the discipline. Whether the dissertation is applied or theoretical in orientation, it must address some aspect of the field of public administration or public policy and must both document and respond to a managerial or policy problem in the field. While the dissertation is guided by the candidate’s dissertation committee, the purpose of the dissertation process to allow the candidate to demonstrate the knowledge, skills, creativity, and ability to conceive and define a problem or research question, ground the work in the appropriate existing literature in the discipline, choose and apply appropriate methods to collect and analyze empirical data to address the research question, and place the findings in the broader context of the state of knowledge within the discipline.

The defense is chaired by the dissertation committee chair who, acting as moderator, rules on questions of procedure and protocol that may arise during the defense. The aim of the defense is to explore, with the candidate, research methodologies employed in conducting the study, findings and conclusions revealed by the study and contributions the study is expected to offer. In this way, the candidate and examiners reach a more extensive insight into the candidate’s research area. During the oral defense, all members of the dissertation committee must render a judgment on the candidate's performance. In the case of extenuating circumstances, absent members of the committee may participate via teleconference.

Any final revisions must be made after the defense before the final copy of the dissertation is submitted to the dissertation committee, the GPD and the Dean for signature on the title page of the dissertation. In the event that the candidate fails to pass the dissertation defense, the dissertation committee may recommend that the candidate be allowed one additional chance at re-examination, or dismissed from the program.

Continued progress of dissertation will be based on dissertation chair’s approval of student’s written summary of progress in the term.

Time Limits for Degree Completion

All requirements for a doctoral degree must be completed within eight calendar years from the date of beginning the initial course of study following admission to the doctoral program. This time limit may be extended under exceptional circumstances, but will require validation of any course credit more than eight years old at the time of graduation.
