Psychopathology from each major division of childhood (infancy, early, emotional, cognitive, and behavioral problems of childhood. Provides a developmental approach to etiology and identification issues or standards of law. Topics include both civil and criminal issues. Discusses the many applications of psychological science and practice to CPSY 915

CPSY 912

Specialized elective available for qualified students, to be scheduled CPSY 900 empirical dissertation. Student works with research mentor to develop, write, and defend an empirical dissertation.

CPSY 900. EVMS-Directed Study. 3 Credits.

Specialized elective available for qualified students, to be scheduled independently in consultation with advisor and instructor.

CPSY 912. EVMS-Research in Clinical Psychology. 1-6 Credits.

Individual project under guidance of a research advisor.

CPSY 915. EVMS-Forensic Psychology. 3 Credits.

Discusses the many applications of psychological science and practice to issues or standards of law. Topics include both civil and criminal issues.

CPSY 925. EVMS-Child/Adolescent Psychopathology. 3 Credits.

Provides a developmental approach to etiology and identification of emotional, cognitive, and behavioral problems of childhood. Psychopathology from each major division of childhood (infancy, early, middle, late childhood, adolescence) is addressed.