The Institute for the Humanities offers a Master of Arts degree in the Humanities. The program allows students to pursue individualized curricula that incorporate classes from across ODU’s seven colleges and more than 60 standalone graduate programs. The program attracts students with unique research projects and/or career objectives that cannot be fully realized within a single discipline and who will benefit from a cross-disciplinary approach. Students become experts in their field by triangulating courses across different disciplines. Students work closely with the program director to design a coherent program of study that encourages critical thinking, innovation, engaged scholarship and experiential learning.

Concentration areas in the master's program include the following:

1. Cultural and Human Geography
2. Cultural Studies (including critical race studies and refugee studies)
3. Gender and Sexuality Studies
4. Media and Popular Culture Studies
5. Philosophy and Religious Studies
6. Visual Studies (including studio arts and art history)
7. World Cultures

The Institute for the Humanities also offers graduate certificates in Arts and Entrepreneurship, Health and Humanities, and Social Justice and Entrepreneurship.
